NOT USED TO KINDNESS

"I am not used to people being so kind to me," said an Ardmore youth who hesitated to accept a pair of shoes offered him.

During the early part of the past week a boy applied to the manager of the tent show for the privilege of selling pop corn in the tent during the performances that he might see the show. He was given the privilege and after the first night's work the manager was informed by one who said he knew the boy that he was unsteady, that he would not do to trust, and the manager was advised to oust him. This caused the manager to watch the boy. He seemed interested in his work. His sales were good, his accounts were correct, and the manager felt that the boy was all right if he had a chance. He gave the boy $7.50 and instructed him to pay an account with it. The lad made immediate return with the receipt. The members of the company became interested in the boy and one who had purchased a pair of shoes that was too small, gave them to the boy. The lad hesitated to take them. He applied to the manager for advice to know whether he must accept the shoes. He said he had not been used to people being so kind to him.

Human nature is about the same in every heart. This boy was being ruined by those who took him for a bad boy. He was scorned when he should have received kindness. He received a cold, suspicious glance when he was worthy of a smile and a word of cheer. The word used to create distrust, is a poisonous arrow shot into the life of a boy. The coming of the show, the finding of a friend who is willing to trust him, may prove a turning point in the boy's life. He may learn how to be big enough to excuse the ignorant who would unwittingly plot his ruin. The first touch of kindness coming from a stranger may teach him that the world is full of kindness, that it at all times stands ready to help. There may be a few whose denseness surrounds them in a mist of suspicion, but humanity as a whole is generous, is kind, is fair, and is always merciful. When the boy learns that lesson, he will be able to occupy a pinnacle from which he can look down upon the person who pointed to him as one who should be denied the privilege of working where he must be trusted.

Over in Europe the hesitation is the favorite pastime for the nations out, and the bunny hug for those in.

A system of warehousing and a government system of financing will have the cotton and the wheat to the men been reduced almost one half. As the wheat supply being back in the hands of the farmer, the price has been reduced almost one half. As soon as it passes out of the hands of the farmer, the prices begin to soar upward. For any such trade rules to exist is a crime against humanity. We raise a great cry of protest against the abuse of agrarian rights in Mexico, and when we compare our intelligence with Mexico, our crime is just as bad as theirs.

When the last cotton crop was being gathered there was a great cry of overproduction. Mr. Clews who is a great market expert whose advice is worth millions to his own set, says the amount carried over is not a burden and the price is getting better. Between the lines this is an appeal to farmers to plant a big crop this year.

Thaw's sanity trial begins Tuesday. It might be decided upon the defendant's failure to tell how many times he has faced the court since his first arrest.

The Guthrie leader might say his prayers oftener and with greater fervency of spirit. It might help some in saving the town from five-inch rainfalls.

DEDICATORY POEM

The following poem written by Mrs. P. D. Maxwell was read by Mr. Maxwell in his speech of welcome to the members and guests at the formal opening of the country club Thursday night:

Our joy today we scarce can hide,
Our chests expand with proper pride.
We envy now no king his throne,
We have a kingdom of our own.

A realm of fair and fragrant green,
Of far blue hills and sky serene,
There morning winds blow fresh and sweet,
And pleasure waits with willing feet.

O, Morris, may thy deeds inspire
Our hearts with golfers' eager fire,
And braid fulfill our every need,
We humbly follow where they lead.

To all those who with hands and brain
Have helped to build our club's domain,
We give our thanks, each smallest part,
If well done, is a work of art.

By every beam and every stone,
By hours on anguish we have known,
By days of hope and nights of fears,
By rides of laughter and of tears.

We pledge us to the royal game,
Beside which other sports are tame,
To wholesome and to friendly play
We dedicate our course today.

ACREAGE LIMIT ON OIL LEASES

acres are producing oil. In addition, other operators will have to surrender 1,000 acres of producing oil, as well as a large amount of non-producing acreage, all of which is to be leased at public auction to new people.

The new leases are to be in quarter section units, up to 4,800 acres in the aggregate, which makes the Osage country conform in this respect to leases in the five tribes' territory. Preferences to the sublessees includes their present holdings, except such quarter-section units the producing wells of which are capable of averaging twenty-five or more barrels a day, measured by the production on July 1, 1915. These units, which are few in number, will be offered at the highest bid publicly made. The rate of production is to be determined under the department's directions.

Dallas Company, Not Affected.

The Dallas-Osage company, of which Col. John N. Simpson and M. M. Baker of Dallas are stockholders, will be able to retain its holdings—2,500 acres, fifteen miles north of Bartlesville, under terms fixed for the new leases.

The oil royalty will be one-sixth, except where the average production on a quarter-section exceeds 100 barrels a month, and the royalty on such wells will be one-fifth. This protects the Indian tribe in the matter of new and large production.

An important feature of the new lease is that giving the government an option on all or any part of the oil produced in the Osage country at the highest posted market price on the date of sale. Under this clause the United States may be amply supplied with fuel oil through the pipe lines extending to the gulf, and at a much lower figure, the government believes, than is now being charged.

Oil and gas rights are to be separately leased. Oil leases will run for five years or as much longer thereafter as oil is found in paying quantities, or so long as the minerals remain in the ground.

Gas Royalty One-Sixth.

The royalty on gas is to be one-sixth, in place of a fixed sum per well. All contracts for sale or use of the gas are to be subject to approval of the secretary of the interior, which is regarded as an essential feature, since the price paid for gas determines the amount of royalty to be paid to the tribe. In oil leases the tribe secures its pro rata of the flow, which it may store or sell as desired. Preference is also given to the present holders of gas rights to retain all or part of their holdings and for such periods as the secretary of the interior may determine. These leases are to be made by the tribal council, and it is not intended that the acreage limitation, as in the case of oil, shall apply to gas leases.

The new plan gives to sublessees of oil rights about 70,000 acres of producing territory and 165,000 acres of non-producing territory. Upon the latter they will be required to pay a rental of $1 an acre in lieu of development.

The remaining 450,000 acres of non-producing territory will be held for future operations.

Congress will be asked by the interior department to extend the tribal status of the Osage Indians for an indefinite period after April 8, 1921, at which time the present trust period ends.

Present Lease Made in 1906.

The present lease was made by act of congress in 1906, and the Indian Territory Illuminating Oil company was given exclusive oil and gas rights on the 680,000 acres for a royalty of one-eighth on oil and a fixed sum per well on gas. The Indian Territory company sublet the other operators on one-sixth royalty, which gave the Indian Territory company a net royalty of one-twenty-fourth. Prior to the present lease the royalty was one-tenth on oil. Lands of the Osages have been producing oil and gas for about twenty years.

The new form of leases is the result of more than three months' work by Secretary Lane and Cato Sells, commissioner of Indian affairs. The plans were unanimously approved by the Osage Indian council, which has been in session here for ten days. This is said to have been the first time in half a century that the Indians and the government were in full accord on matters respecting their lands.

Secretary Lane, Commissioner Sells and Osage Indian Agent J. George Wright of Pawhuska, Okla., took the Osage council to the White House to call on President Wilson. The president congratulated them upon the result of their work.
